

PH.D. IN EDUCATION AND HUMAN RESOURCE STUDIES, HIGHER EDUCATION LEADERSHIP SPECIALIZATION

The Ph.D. in Education and Human Resource Studies, Higher Education Leadership Specialization prepares students to work as higher education administrators and leaders to address critical issues impacting college and university environments.

By centering equity and justice in the program's coursework, the student gains analytical research skills, critical thinking skills, and the application of knowledge to lead and transform higher education.

Structured in cohorts, this doctoral program provides a supportive learning platform for learners. It is delivered primarily online, utilizing synchronous video conferencing, with a limited number of on-campus components (dates to be determined by the program faculty).