

MAJOR IN HUMAN DEVELOPMENT AND FAMILY STUDIES, HUMAN DEVELOPMENT AND FAMILY STUDIES CONCENTRATION

The Human Development and Family Studies concentration is a general concentration available to HDFS majors who do not choose one of the more specific concentrations. This general concentration is an excellent choice for students who are interested in a lifespan focus or more general focus in HDFS and are not seeking the specialized training offered in the other four concentrations. Students choosing this concentration will be preparing to enter a variety of careers or graduate programs. The curriculum includes primarily HDFS, psychology, and social work courses as well as selected courses from other disciplines for a well-rounded and robust education in human development and family studies. By selecting this concentration, students have an opportunity to participate in a variety of experiential learning courses and internship options as they explore and prepare for their career path and additional credentialing options. Please note that the HDFS general concentration cannot be paired with one of the other four concentrations because of the more general focus, and does not appear on students' transcripts.

Learn more about the Human Development and Family Studies major on the Human Development and Family Studies website. (<https://www.chhs.colostate.edu/hdfs/programs-and-degrees/b-s-in-human-development-and-family-studies/>)