

PEACE CORPS MASTER'S INTERNATIONAL PROGRAMS

Office of International Programs – Laurel Hall
(970) 491-5917

The Peace Corps Master's International Program (<http://international-initiatives.colostate.edu>) offers the unique opportunity to pair graduate studies with volunteer service abroad. Participants earn a degree from CSU while advancing the skills and education needed to serve successfully abroad. Programs are offered within the Warner College of Natural Resources (<http://warnercnr.colostate.edu>), College of Agricultural Sciences (<http://agsci.colostate.edu>), Department of English (<http://english.colostate.edu>), Department of Food Science and Human Nutrition (<http://www.fshn.chhs.colostate.edu>), and the Colorado School of Public Health at CSU (<http://www.publichealth.colostate.edu>). Prospective students must apply to a participating CSU graduate program and to the Peace Corps (<http://www.peacecorps.gov>).

Peace Corps Master's International students take approximately three semesters of coursework on campus, serve 27 months in a Peace Corps host country, and return to campus to complete a professional paper or portfolio. Graduates will develop a broader worldview and the skills and education needed to contribute to domestic and international community development.

For more information, contact your program of interest.