Graduate Programs in Languages, Literatures, and Cultures

Students wishing to pursue advanced studies can earn a Master of Arts degree in Languages, Literatures, and Cultures (with specializations in Spanish), or follow a program that combines the specializations in Spanish with study in another field. Students can also pursue a double degree (Joint Program) in which students earn an M.A. in Languages, Literatures, and Cultures (specialization in Spanish) and an M.A. in English (specialization of teaching English as a second language or teaching English as a foreign language, TEFL/TESL). Please consult the Graduate and Professional Bulletin (<http://catalog.colostate.edu/general-catalog/graduate-bulletin/>).
