

POLITICAL COMMUNICATION INTERDISCIPLINARY MINOR

The Political Communication Interdisciplinary Minor is designed for students interested in the way ideas are communicated and shape the political process. It emphasizes the knowledge and abilities relevant to participation in political environments. The minor is particularly relevant for students interested in communication, law, politics, public administration, public deliberation, public policy, and other professions that deal with issues in public settings.

Coordinated by the Department of Political Science. For more information on declaring a minor in Political Communication, please visit Clark C346 or contact Lauren Tighe at lauren.tighe@colostate.edu.
